Course Description Risk indicators, risk assessment, tools and instruments for informal assessment, interpreting standardized observational skills, and roles as IDP/SCC consultants. (UBC calendar) Pre-requisites: Both EPSE 348, EPSE 406. This online course examines assessment for program planning purposes for infants and toddlers, and the role of Infant Development Consultants (IDC) and Supported Childcare Consultants (SCC) in the process.

Intended Audience This is a required course for students enrolled in the Infant Development/Supported Child Care Diploma Program. It is intended for ID consultants who work with children aged 0-3 in home, childcare, or pre-school settings; and SCC consultants who work with children in childcare and school settings. This course would also be appropriate for early childhood education/pre-school teachers, pediatric nurses, and rehabilitative therapists with a special interest in young children. Prospective students are expected to have completed a minimum of two years of college and/or university courses. Students in the ID/SCC diploma program must have completed EPSE 348 (Family-Centered Practice) and EPSE 406 (Typical and Atypical Development in Infants and Young Children) prior to enrolling in this course and have completed a survey or introductory course on infant and childcare development.

Course Objectives This online course is intended to provide students with information related to assessment for program planning purposes within diverse settings. By the end of this course, students will:

- Understand and be able to utilize appropriate assessment procedures, practices, and tools with infants and young children;
- Understand the role of ID and SCC consultants in the assessment process;
- Have a thorough knowledge of basic terminology and tools relating to the assessment process and tools; and
- Understand the critical role of the family in the assessment process.
